During the last couple of decades, aerial platforms and manlifts have become a common sight on construction job sites and in industrial maintenance applications. These machines provide an easy way to lift staff close to what needs to be carried out on a stable platform apparatus, enabling workers to carry out tasks with greater safety and comfort rather than being perched on top of ladders or scaffoldings.

The manlift is like other industrial tools in that they are safe when used correctly. Since they lift employees above ground level or floor, accidents can easily take place and this could result in serious injuries or death for both the manlift operators and whoever passerby who might be unlucky enough to be standing below.

Manlifts come in different kinds. Most fit into 1 or 2 categories: the scissor lift, that is capable of moving upward and downward and the articulating boom lift, which can move both horizontally and vertically.
